Late Night Diplomacy

Turning Academic Theory Into Real Diplomacy

14.3 – 30.5.2022

What Is Late Night Diplomacy About?

We are a student-driven initiative aimed to create a discussion forum between aspiring students of International Relations and politicians and diplomats.

The project consists of 12 conferences dedicated to a specific topic ranging from journalism up to conflict resolution.

Through this program, we aim to equip youth with the tools necessary not only to excel in IR careers, but to ensure that Europe itself is equipped with well-trained and motivated personnel in this century.

Our Venue

For our conferences we have chosen a very special place — Kaiserštejn Palace, located in a Baroque-style building in Malá Strana.

The first owner was the military commander of Prague, František Helfrýd, a free lord from Kaiserstein. In the following years, the palace changed several owners. The Radecký family from Radče was among them.

Later between the years 1908–1911, a famous Czech opera star, Ema Destinová, lived here.

Today, the hall of Late Night Diplomacy conferences holds her name.

Who Can Join?

Students aged from 18 to 27 years and currently studying a relevant (international relations, political science, journalism, social science, humanities, economics) bachelor's, master's or doctoral study program at accredited universities in the Czech Republic.

We accept graduates of the program who completed their studies no more than two years ago. Also, if you are enrolled in the last year of a high school (gymnázium), can also apply.

Why Do We Do It?

All of us, the people behind LND, during our studies have gone abroad on exchange programs, attended various summer schools and student conferences. One day we decided that it is the time to try to do our own educational project.

The European Union puts in a lot of effort to develop youth capacities, increase their social engagement, and mobility – creating something that parents of GenZ (even in the West) could never think of.

We do this project because we believe in a change – a positive one, which is possible once you comprehensively and critically look at it.
